despite its typically regressive associations with homesickness the longing associated with nostalgia may also function progressively as a vehicle for imaginatively fixing the past in two senses securing and mending or repairing considering fiction by two british and six american women writers of different generations and ethnicities this study explores tensions between home and exile insider and outsider longing and belonging loss and recovery rubenstein argues that nostalgia functions narratively as a strategy for interrogating not only notions of home homesickness and homeland but also cultural historical dislocation aging and moral responsibility these narratives re frame a significant locus of concern in contemporary female experience personal and or cultural displacement and longing for home are ultimately transmuted imaginatively at least by a restorative vision that enables healing and emotional repair while victorian tourism and victorian sexuality have been the subject of much critical interest there has been little research on a characteristically nineteenth century phenomenon relating to both sex and travel the honeymoon or wedding journey although the term honeymoon was coined in the eighteenth century the ritual increased in popularity throughout the victorian period until by the end of the century it became a familiar accompaniment to the wedding for all but the poorest classes using letters and diaries of 61 real life honeymooning couples as well as novels from frankenstein to middlemarch that feature honeymoon scenarios michie explores the cultural meanings of the honeymoon arguing that with its emphasis on privacy and displacement the honeymoon was central to emerging ideals of conjugality and to ideas of the couple as a primary social unit in belated travelers ali behdad offers a compelling cultural critique of nineteenth century travel writing and its dynamic function in european colonialism arriving too late to the orient at a time when tourism and colonialism had already turned the exotic into the familiar late nineteenth century european travelers to the middle east experienced a sense of belatedness of having missed the authentic experience once offered by a world that was already disappearing behdad argues that this nostalgic desire for the other contains an implicit critique of western superiority a split within european discourses of otherness working from these insights and using analyses of power derived from foucault behdad engages in a new critique of orientalism no longer viewed as a coherent and unified phenomenon or a single developmental tradition it is seen as a complex and shifting field of practices that has relied upon its own ambivalence and moments of discontinuity to ensure and maintain its power as a discourse of dominance through readings of flaubert nerval kipling blunt and eberhardt and following the transition in travel literature from travelog to tourist guide belated travelers addresses the specific historical conditions of late nineteenth century orientalism implicated in the discourses of desire and power behdad also views a broad range of issues in addition to nostalgia and tourism including transvestism and melancholia to specifically demonstrate the ways in which the heterogeneity of orientalism and the plurality of its practice is an enabling force in the production and transformation of colonial power an exceptional work that provides an important critique of issues at the forefront of critical practice today belated travelers will be eagerly awaited by specialists in nineteenth century british and french literatures and all concerned with colonial and post colonial discourse more than just an account of his travels in cairo beirut and constantinople in 1842 gerard de nerval s journey to the orient is a quest for the unknown if his narrator seems credulous in his retelling of legends of the origins of the pyramids and the mysteries of the druzes it is with this purpose in mind while the orientalists of his day were confident of having in the words of Edward Said grasped appropriated reduced and codified the Orient. The Orient remains elusive impossible to grasp poignantly dramatized in the thematic centerpieces of the tales of the Queen of Sheba and the Caliph Hakim what takes shape in this visionary travelogue as the author's hopes are alternately disappointed and rapturously renewed is the story of the artist's search for the ideal.
