Black Water Sister 2021-06-10 reconstructing woman explores a scenario common to the works of four major french novelists of the nineteenth century balzac flaubert zola and villiers in the texts of each author a new pygmalion as balzac calls one of his characters turns away from a real woman he has loved or desired and prefers instead his artificial re creation of her all four authors also portray the possibility that this simulacrum which replaces the woman could become real the central chapters examine this plot and its meanings in multiple texts of each author with the exception of the chapter on villiers in which only l eve future is considered the premise is that this shared scenario stems from the discovery in the nineteenth century that humans are transformable because scientific innovations play a major part in this discovery dorothy kelly reviews some of the contributing trends that attracted one or more of the authors mesmerism dissection transformism and evolution new understandings of human reproduction spontaneous generation puericulture the experimental method these ideas and practices provided the novelists with a scientific context in which controlling changing and creating human bodies became imaginable at the same time these authors explore the ways in which not only bodies but also identity can be made in close readings kelly shows how these narratives reveal that linguistic and coded social structures shape human identity furthermore through the representation of the power of language to do that shaping the authors envision that their own texts would perform that function the symbol of the reconstruction of woman thus embodies the fantasy and desire that their novels could create or transform both reality and their readers in quite literal ways through literary analyses we can deduce from the texts just why this artificial creation is a woman

Homeland Elegies 2021 introduction by otto boele afterword by nicholas luker it evoked almost unprecedented discussions like those at the time of turgenev s fathers and sons some praised the novel far more than it deserved others complained bitterly that it was a defamation of youth i may however without exaggeration assert that no one in russia took the trouble to fathom the ideas of the novel the eulogies and condemnations are equally one sided thus did mikhail artsybashev 1878 1927 whose novels and short stories are suffused with themes of sex suicide and murder describe the reaction to publication in 1907 of sanin his second novel the work provoked heated debates among the russian reading public and the journal in which it was published serially was soon closed down by the authorities the hero of artsybashev s novel exhibits a set of new values to be contrasted with the morality of the older russian intelligentsia sanin is an attractive clever powerful life loving man who is at the same time an amoral and carnal animal bored both by politics and by religion during the novel he lusts after his own sister but defends her when she is betrayed by an arrogant officer he deflowers an innocent but willing virgin and encourages a jewish friend to end his self doubts by committing suicide sanin s extreme individualism greatly appealed to young people in russia during the twilight years of the romanov regime saninism was marked by sensualism self gratification and self destruction and gained in credibility in an atmosphere of moral and spiritual despondency artybashev drew upon a wide range of sources for his inspiration sanin owes debts to dostoevsky s notes from underground nietzsche s notion of the superman and the work of the individualist anarchist philosopher johann kaspar schmidt michael r katz s translation of this controversial novel is the first into english in almost seventy years russian pornography is not plain pornography such as the french and germans produce but pornography with ideas kornei chukovsky those who saw in the much discussed novel only suggestive scenes shocking their morality or titillating their senses were mistaken it was as usual in russia a book with a message and sanin slept with all his mistresses to prove a thesis rather than to obey a natural urge marc slonim

Pat Barker's Regeneration 2001-09-12 this story of the life of an habitual criminal illustrates a tendency of american fiction to develop problems rather than situations refraining from the introduction of incidents of a particularly exciting character in the life of the flash burglar which forms the subject of his book the author devotes himself to illustrating the various mental phases through which his hero passes in order to become an honest man at the last the interest of the book is therefore mainly psychological and mr flynt while displaying undoubted cleverness in his manner of handling his subject is somewhat overburdened by the weight of the task which he has set himself if he has failed to be quite convincing the fact is due rather to the inherent difficulties of the subject than to any want of thought or care on the part of the author the saturday review vol 97
